Gursel Denies Candidacy In New Turkish Elections

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — LT. Gen. Cemal Gursel declared Tuesday he will not be a candidate in the elections he has promised Turkey.

The acting President and Premier, who took over the government after last Friday's army coup against the 10-year authoritarian rule of Premier Adnan Menderes, told a news conference also that the ousted Democrats will be allowed to compete in the elections.

Asked if he himself would run, the big white-haired general replied emphatically, "Youk" (No).

"My intentions are to lead the country to the point of elections. When the electoral rolls and the new constitution are completed all political parties will have the same rights, and the people will take over. After that I shall retire and lead the life of an ordinary citizen."

Although Gen. Gursel said Menderes' Democrats would be allowed to compete, there was some confusion about the former Premier and members of his government who have been arrested.

He said they had been arrested because "these people were guilty in our belief."

A committee already is at work to investigate the Menderes' regime, he added, and "if the detained persons are found guilty they will not be able to file as candidates in the forthcoming elections. They will have to account for their deeds."

The revolutionary government has said there would be no trial of the detained officials until a new civil government has been elected. There was no explanation of how this decision would square with Gursel's statement the Democrats could run in the election.

Plastic Sphere Is Sent Aloft

WASHINGTON (AP)—A gigantic plastic sphere, tall as a 10-story building, blossomed into a bright star some 200 miles above the Virginia coastline at dusk Tuesday night.

The huge aluminum-coated ball was a forerunner of lightweight satellites that will be used for relaying radio and television signals over great distances.

Folded into a metal container 26 1/2 inches in diameter, the sphere was launched by rocket from Wallops Island, Va.,

Governor Rejects Rule

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence Tuesday rejected use of unit rule to keep Pennsylvania's 81-vote delegation in line at the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles.

"I am not going to try to put in any unit rule," the governor declared. "It wouldn't work."

He made the statement at an impromptu airport news conference following his return from a month-long vacation in Europe and Israel.

The 70-year-old governor and his wife appeared tanned and relaxed after a brief trip from New York. Smiling, he wagged his head and said, "No change, no change" when asked

Stroud Union Board Adopts 1960 Budget

IN A SHORT business session last night at the high school, Stroud Union School Board adopted the proposed $1,268,765.47 budget calling for a 25-mill tax rate on real estate, and an occupation millage of 25 mills.

In addition, the two $5 per capita taxes will be collected.

Taxes are expected to yield about $623,435, while most of the remaining balance will be made up from almost $620,000 in state appropriations.

The board's meeting lasted about 20 minutes.

Vanderbilt Race Issue Strips School Of Faculty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A race issue has virtually stripped the faculty from Vanderbilt University's school of divinity.

Dean J. Robert Nelson, Asst. Dean James D. Sellers and eight other members of the faculty resigned Monday to Chancellor Harvie J. Branscomb. They protested Vanderbilt's failure to readmit the Rev. James M. Lawson Jr., a dismissed Negro student, to summer classes.

Lawson was dismissed last March for his role in lunch counter sit-in demonstrations here. Several members of the divinity school faculty protested his dismissal at that time and had been working quietly, they said, to gain his readmission this summer.

The divinity school has 16 faculty members. Two of them had resigned earlier. Two of the remaining members have indicated they plan to remain at Vanderbilt.

Fourteen divinity school students said they had quit school and three who graduated Sunday said they were returning their diplomas.

Branscomb said he had refused to authorize the return of Lawson unless the matter was referred to the university trustees.

Lawson has indicated he may accept an invitation to enter Boston University's school of divinity.

In Boston, a spokesman said Lawson's application has been airmailed and was expected Wednesday. It would be acted on later.

Holiday Toll Misses Being New Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Traffic 367
Boating 48
Drowning 77

Total 579

The death toll from traffic accidents across the nation during the three-day Memorial Day weekend narrowly missed setting a record for the holiday.

The final count was 567. The record of 571 traffic deaths was counted during the 1958 three-day holiday.

But the overall toll of 579 deaths including traffic and those resulting from boating, drowning and miscellaneous accidents, far surpassed the previous Memorial weekend record of 501 set in 1947.

The National Safety Council had estimated before the start of the holiday at 6 p.m., local time, Friday that 375 lives would be lost in traffic accidents before the holiday ended at midnight Monday.

The NSC said the heavy traffic toll was additional evidence that holiday periods bring extra traffic and extra danger.

"There is only one way to meet this—by everyone exerting an extra effort to prevent accidents," the NSC added. "This applies most of all to drivers. To the extent that this simple fact is recognized, accepted and put into action, the holiday traffic tolls will come down."

The nation's worst accident occurred Monday near Cambridge, Ohio, when a trailer-truck and a passenger car collided head-on, killing all six occupants of the car.

A two-car crash Monday night near Pottstown, Pa., took the lives of four young men and a young woman and injured four other persons.

Near Evanston, Wyo., four women died and at least 20 other passengers were injured Monday night when a Greyhound bus slammed into the rear of a parked trailer-truck.

The number of persons killed in traffic during the holiday was 37 more than was counted in a non-holiday survey by The Associated Press during a similar 73-hour weekend period in mid-May. The toll then was 330.

Counter Red Moves

Nixon Urges SEATO Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon urged free world countries to adopt a no-retreat, no-concession policy to counter the Soviet Union's blowup of the summit conference.

"If one fact has become clear in international relations," he said "it is that peace cannot be purchased by weakness and concessions on the part of the free world."

Nixon spoke out Tuesday in opening the sixth annual strategy meeting of the eight nations which are members of the South East Asia Treaty Organization.

President Eisenhower later officially welcomed delegates at a White House luncheon. In a brief speech, he conferred himself to lauding the role the defense alliance, formed in 1954, has played in combatting Communist aggression, subversion and infiltration in the area.

"However, we cannot afford to relax our vigilance or slacken our cooperative efforts to further the high principles of the Pacific theater," Eisenhower said.

"No defense alliance of which we are a member faces a greater challenge or protects a more vital segment of the free world than SEATO."

Nixon, substituting for Eisenhower in the opening ceremonies, ruled out any thought of retreat or appeasement in the face of the Soviet post-summit policy.

In the critical years ahead, he said, free nations should be guided by "one all-important principle" to keep East-West differences from exploding into a nuclear war.

Delegates who gathered to hear him in an atmosphere of military honor guards and blaring trumpets included the foreign ministers of France, Britain, the Philippines, Pakistan and Thailand, as well as Prime Ministers Robert C. Menzies of Australia and Walter Nash of New Zealand.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, the top American representative in the three days of meetings, was elected chairman.

The collapse of the Paris summit meeting dominated the speeches by delegates. A secondary theme was concern over possible aggressive moves by the Chinese Communists in the Asian area.

Nixon and Menzies agreed in attributing heightened East-West tensions squarely on Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Menzies said Khrushchev shattered the hopes of millions of people by torpedoing the summit sessions to gain propaganda advantage.

Nixon said Khrushchev must assume sole responsibility for the summit's failure. He said Soviet leaders have been "bellicose, intemperate and ill-mannered."

Nixon hinted that if he were elected president he would rely more on traditional diplomacy than on meetings by heads of governments to ease international tensions.

"While we do not rule out any meeting which might contribute to the cause of peace, certainly the world will now have greater confidence in the traditional methods of diplomacy and in discussions in the United Nations than in the summitry on which Khrushchev has in the past insisted," Nixon said.

Speedway Considers Scaffold Stand Ban

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Speedway owner Tony Hulman said Tuesday he is considering a ban on private scaffold stands like the one that fell Monday, killing two race fans and injuring 82.

"We certainly don't want anything like this to happen again," said Hulman, a Terre Haute, Ind., industrialist.

The toppling of the nine-tiered, pipe-and-plank stand at the start of the 500-mile race is the worst spectator accident in the 51-year history of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The deaths were the first among spectators since 1938. Through the years there have been nine.

"It may take 48 hours to several weeks to decide on a definite policy," said Albert W. Bloemker, speedway publicity director after a top-level conference at the track. "We are not slighting the matter."

"The matter is in the hands of the attorneys and the safety patrol. After their combined report is in, track officials will consider it."

The responsibility clearly lies with the persons who constructed the scaffold," said Edwin K. Steers, Indiana attorney general. "It was a bootleg operation."

There was no request for a building permit from the town of Speedway or Marion County.

The stand was erected on a 2 1/2-ton flatbed truck by Fred H. Linder, 36, Indianapolis, one of the dead, and Wilbur Shortridge, Indianapolis, one of the three injured critically.

The men had sold seats on the scaffold at $5 to $10, although some seats in the speedway's grandstands and bleachers were available before the race at about the same prices.

Contractors Resume Work On Airport

MOUNT POCONO — Work was resumed yesterday on the present expansion and improvement program at the Pocono Mountains Airport north of here.

R. Lefty Dengler, chairman of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority, said 60 per cent of the major contract has been completed. Remaining to be done are black topping of the main runway, apron and access road, grading of the parking area and fencing of parts of the property.

Grading, top soiling, seeding and mulching of approximately 40 acres of the area surrounding the 4,000-foot paved runway and the auxiliary runway and taxiways are yet to be completed, Dengler said.

The lighting system has been completed at a cost of slightly more than $25,000. As an extra safety measure, the chairman said, the high tension wires and telephone lines at the eastern approach to the airport runways are to be placed underground for a distance of nearly 800 feet.

Dengler said the Airport Authority, the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission and the Federal Aviation Agency are hoping that the enlarged field will be in usable condition by Aug. 1.

The over-all cost of the present, first-phase project will be approximately $400,000. This, according to Dengler, is financed on a matching basis, with the local share of $100,000 being matched by $100,000 in state funds and by $200,000 in federal grants.

The new deadline for trucks, buses and other commercial vehicles is midnight Saturday (June 4). Tuesday ordinarily would have been the last day for getting the 1960 commercial registration stickers.

Revenue Secretary Charles M. Dougherty said the extension was granted as a convenience to truck owners. He also noted that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles was closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

There was no estimate of the total number of commercial registrations still out, but the bureau reported that at the close of business last Saturday it had issued some 485,000 registrations. This was 35,000 more than for the same time last year.

No Comment On Purpose Of Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Central Intelligence Director Allen W. Dulles balked Tuesday at telling investigating senators what information the U2 spy plane was after when it was downed over the Soviet Union May 1.

This was one of the few details newsmen were able to learn after Dulles had testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for nearly six hours in an atmosphere of extreme secrecy.

Says It Unrse
At the end, committee Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) stuck to his contention that it was unwise for President Eisenhower to acknowledge responsibility for that flight, which Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev seized on to destroy the summit talks in mid-May.

Fulbright, who gave newsmen the skimpiest of information on what went on behind the committee's guarded doors, insisted Eisenhower should shoulder the responsibility because of what Fulbright called questionable decisions by State Department and White House political officers whom he did not identify.

Saying the CIA should not be held accountable in any way for this, Fulbright told reporters "Mr. Dulles does not pass on the wisdom of policy but confines himself to the furnishing of information."

Earlier, Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn) let it be known he had pressed Dulles as to why the U2 flight was deemed so important only two weeks before the summit meeting was to open in Paris.

Gore recalled that Eisenhower described the information the plane sought as vital and that the President suggested it might not be obtainable later.

When Fulbright was asked if the committee received a report on the purpose of the controversial spy mission, he replied:

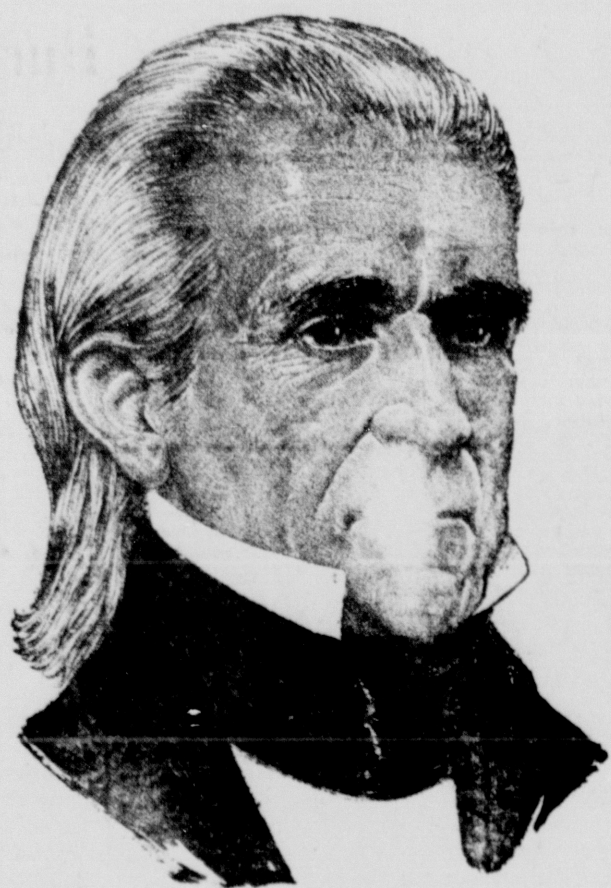

"We did not. Mr. Dulles said he did not care to comment on that."

Dulles appeared before the committee amid secrecy precautions rarely, if ever, matched on Capitol Hill.

MR. PRESIDENT

by Patrick and Vinmont

JAMES KNOX POLK

Born near Little Sugar Creek, North Carolina, November 2, 1795. A few years later his father moved the family to Tennessee. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1818, studied law in Nashville for two years and was then admitted to the bar. At 28 he was elected a member of the Tennessee legislature; at 30 he became a member of Congress and served continuously for 14 years. He was elected Governor of Tennessee when he was 44.

Following two defeats for re-election as governor, he was nominated by the Democrats for the Presidency in 1844. Unthought of 24 hours before, he became the first Presidential "dark horse" candidate.

Inaugurated the eleventh President of the United States March 4, 1845. He declined to run a second term. During his administration disputes arising from the annexation of Texas were settled; California, New Mexico and adjoining areas were ceded to the United States as a result of the Mexican War and territory in the Northwest was confirmed by the Oregon settlement.

Broken by the heavy labor of his term, he retired to his home in Nashville where he died three months later, June 15, 1849, aged 53.

GEORGE MIFFLIN DALLAS

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 1792. He graduated from Princeton College and then studied law with his father, a former United States District Attorney and Secretary of the Treasury. He was admitted to the bar in 1813 and practiced law in Philadelphia. His public service started with his election as Mayor of Philadelphia in 1828. He then served as United States District Attorney, United States Senator and as Ambassador to Russia. Recognized as an able statesman with a deep knowledge of domestic and foreign politics, he was elected Vice-President of the United States in 1844. He served four years. From 1856-61, he served as Minister to Great Britain. A brilliant diplomat who liked politics as a hobby, he cared little for political rewards. Dallas, Texas, named after him, exemplifies the dignity of his political career. He died in 1864.

MRS. JAMES KNOX POLK

Sarah Childress was born in Tennessee, 1803. She was educated in a Moravian school, and married James Polk in 1824. Superior of mind, she often advised her lawyer husband. As mistress of the White House she presided at her formal gatherings with queenly grace. Practicing the strict principles she had absorbed in the Moravian school, she did not permit liquor or dancing. Concerned over her husband's health, she encouraged his decision not to run for re-election. She died in 1891, surviving her husband by forty-two years.

New Threat Endangering Greentown Family's Home

By Peggy Bancroft

NEWFOUNDLAND — A new threat is endangering the home of the Harry Duecker family in Greentown, at the site where 11 persons died in the August, 1955 flood.

Erosion of the new channel of the East Branch of the Paupack Creek where it joins the Wallenpaupack poses a definite threat. The channel, created by the Highway Department last year when a new bridge was erected over Route 507, has more than doubled its width in the past year. The banks are crumbling more and more with each rainfall, according to Mrs. Duecker, who waged a three-year battle with officials to secure the safety of her home through flood prevention work carried out in 1959 by the Department of Forests and Waters and the State Highway Department.

Back 60 Feet
In one spot, almost directly across from the Duecker home, the Paupack has eaten the banks back 60 feet, allowing the creekwaters to again form a T-shaped confluence with the Wallenpaupack. This in turn creates a whirlpool which eats into the West bank.

"We're in just as much danger as we were before all the work was done last year," Mrs. Duecker points out. "The banks of the new channel should have been secured immediately through 'rip-rapping' or planting. Now the work will have to be done all over again, at an expense to the taxpayers that could, with a little foresight and planning, have been avoided entirely."

"In addition," she continues, "The banks of the Wallenpaupack as it flows past our home are again littered with debris and silt deposited during high water last Spring. The old channel of the Paupack, abandoned when the new one was created by the Highway Department, is now a stagnant pool, breeding mosquitoes and posing a serious health problem."

The trouble spot in Greentown which took the high toll of lives in the flood following Hurricane Diane was visited by Dr. Maurice Goddard and other State officials last Summer while the work was under way. Dr. Goddard expressed satisfaction with the progress at that time.

State Highway
Mrs. Duecker points out that the present hazard is not the problem of the Forests and Waters Department, but instead is one with which the State Highway Department must deal. To date, she has received no satisfaction in her calls to highway officials for action and help.

PP&L Ready For Heads Up Drive

WITH spring construction projects getting into full swing, Pennsylvania Power & Light Company is again undertaking its "Heads Up! Electric Lines Can't Duck!" campaign.

The goal of this campaign is to reduce the number of fatalities and injuries and eliminate service interruptions to customers that can occur when construction equipment is brought carelessly into contact with overhead wires.

The company has prepared, and is sending out literature to all firms in its service area operating cranes, well-drilling rigs and similar equipment. This literature includes pamphlets and posters that tell how to avoid accidents and what to do if one should occur, and adhesive warning stickers to remind operators that it is unlawful to bring their equipment within six feet of an electric line.

To insure all operators see the material, it is also being sent to labor unions whose members are engaged in construction work. Rounding out the scope of the campaign are letters sent to municipal officials in the company's service area informing them of its efforts and asking their cooperation.

Bloomsburg State Ups Dorm Fees

BLOOMSBURG—The Board of Trustees of Bloomsburg State College, acting in compliance with Act No. 730 passed by the 1959 legislature requesting that dormitory room rental fees be increased not to exceed $3 per week, has approved an increase in the housing rate from $504 ($324 food, $180 room and laundry) to $540 ($324 food, $216 room only) effective September, 1960. This means that personal laundry service will no longer be offered by the College to students.

Effective June 1, 1961, the housing rate will be raised to $576 ($324 food, $252 room). This action relates only to the future policy relating to room rentals, and makes no prediction regarding future food costs.

These increases are subject to change if the cost of Food Service is increased.

This action by the Bloomsburg Board of Trustees follows a recommendation made recently by the Board of Presidents of Pennsylvania's fourteen State Colleges and approved by Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Department Stores Sales In Area Up 35 Per Cent

DEPARTMENT store sales in the Third Federal Reserve District increased 35 per cent from March to April. After allowance for seasonal variation and the later date of Easter this year, adjusted sales for April were still 12 per cent above March. The seasonally adjusted index for April was 151 per cent of the 1947-1949 average.

Every area for which information is available showed substantial gains, and in all instances they were greater than seasonal.

District sales this April were 19 per cent above last year, and even after adjustment for the changing date of Easter were 8 per cent larger. All areas enjoyed gains, with Philadelphia matching the District average.

Six Ahead
For the first four months of the year, sales in the District were running 6 per cent ahead of the same period of 1959. Business in the central city stores of Philadelphia was about the same as last year, but in all of the areas, including the Philadelphia Metropolitan Area, sales were averaging better than last year.

As would be expected with Easter falling in April, preliminary April figures on sales by departments show that the best over-the-year comparisons are in both men's and women's apparel and such gift items as costume jewelry and candy.

Stocks of goods on hand at the end of April were 5 per cent greater than a month earlier, but after seasonal adjustment this represents a gain of 1 per cent. Compared with April of last year, the dollar volume of inventories was 4 per cent greater.

Chamber Gets 1st Membership Report

THE POCONO Mountains Chamber of Commerce held its first membership report meeting yesterday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. Attended by officers and members of the newly organized "Ambassadors," the meeting was devoted to reports as to the progress of the drive and a question and answer session.

It was reported that the Chamber was primarily responsible for bringing into Monroe County 11 plants employing approximately 736 people with an $18,000,000 payroll.

$43,000,000

It was emphasized that all businesses and professions in Monroe County benefit from this huge payroll. These plants did $43,000,000 of business last year. Eastern Debkote, Inc.; Holland Thread Co., Inc.; Pocono Shoe Mfg. Co.; Monitor Dispenser Co., Inc.; Redmond Finishing Co.; Sherwin Mfg. Co.; Shaw Insulator Co.; Trumatic Machine & Tool Co.; Welco Industries, Inc.; and the Weller Brush Co. There is one other plant (as yet unnamed) moving here soon, which will employ 250 people.

Out of County

There are 500 people in this county going out of the county to work. Our young people are also moving away. More industry would keep them here. New industry will make new jobs and the salaries from the new jobs will be spent locally for all to benefit.

Attracting industry is a highly competitive business, it was noted. Other communities have an advantage over Monroe County because of much larger industrial funds and more to offer such as free taxes for a certain period of time, utilities available on property, etc.

Funds available for industrial purposes in other areas include: Scranton, $24,000,000; Wilkes-Barre, $750,000; Easton, $250,000; Allentown, $300,000 and "Almerton," $180,000.

Because of lack of funds to make available what another community offered, we lost Wilson Products employing approximately 350 people.

Presiding was Chamber President LeRoy Mikels assisted by membership drive chairman J. Albert Groner and William Nixon.

Bond Sales In County Increase

MONROE COUNTY Savings Bond sales during the first three months of this year are approximately $50,000 higher than during the same period of 1959, Patrick J. Shovin, northeastern Pennsylvania area manager for the Treasury Dept.'s savings bonds division, reported yesterday.

Sales through March of this year amounted to $366,101, compared to $315,993 for the same period of 1959.

Sales by months this year showed $138,502 in January, $80,493 in February and $127,106 in March, while the 1959 figures showed $106,831 in January, $121,181 in February and $87,081 in March.

Total sales for 1959 were $1,160,659, compared to $1,114,516.

I'M A PROFESSIONAL MAN. I DON'T NEED THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Can you recall any professional man having prospered in the Sahara Desert? It takes a community to give you opportunity. A new factory, a distribution unit, thousands of convention and vacation visitors—they employ people and mean new clients for lawyers, new patients for doctors and dentists. The community that stands still is not an inviting place for professional progress. An expanding clientele is necessary for a continuing, profitable practice. Your investment in the Chamber of Commerce pays big dividends.

Not Easy Sailing

The path to the Democratic convention at Los Angeles will not be free from thorns for Sen. John F. Kennedy even though he won a decisive victory in the West Virginia primary.

Evidence of serious opposition to his presidential aspirations was unmistakable when former President Truman refused to climb on his handwagon and declared himself, instead, for Missouri's favorite son, Sen. Stuart Symington.

Mr. Truman was quite pointed in saying his endorsement of Sen. Symington was personal, and not merely dictated by the happenstance of being a fellow Missourian.

We can expect the professional politicians in Democratic ranks to follow Mr. Truman's cue. Despite the demonstrated popularity of Sen. Kennedy, they are bound to weigh him carefully in terms of the situations and problems a man faces in the White House.

They will be hunting answers to questions like these:

What preparation does Sen. Kennedy have to meet the exacting demands of summit conferences? How is he going to do with Macmillan, Adenauer, de Gaulle and Khrushchev?

What broad or useful experience has he acquired in the executive realm of government?

Does his legislative record of six years as a congressman and seven years as a senator contain constructive accomplishments? Will it win him votes or be a handicap?

Will his youthfulness—his 43rd birthday occurred Sunday—he held against him? Or will it prove to be a boon?

Questions like these will engage the professionals as they hunt a nominee at Los Angeles whom they can reasonably hope to elect next November. At their hands, despite his popularity at the polls, he will face careful weighing between now and July.

Young Man Going West

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

George Litts, the service station gent in Stroudsburg, is hitting the fairways these days.

The chunky former East Stroudsburg High athlete isn't in Ben Hogan's class yet but hopes to emulate the ex-king of the links before long.

That's if they shorten all courses to just putting greens.

Mr. "G", the affable manager of Water Gap Country Club, hopes the weather will turn for the better.

"We've had enough of this rain," the now not smiling one from Delaware Water Gap said the other day in Stroudsburg.

Mr. "G" is an old hand at the resort business having been in many ventures before taking his present Water Gap position.

Capt. Jerry Shanley is preparing training plans for his National Guard unit which will have an encampment soon.

Incidentally the Stroudsburg resident is now employed at the First Stroudsburg National Bank.

A tip of the lid to Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg police and State Police for the magnificent way they handled traffic over a busier-than-usual Memorial Day weekend.

The gendarmes of this territory did themselves proud in keeping the practically bumper-to-bumper vehicle flow moving.

Lester Younklin, the Delaware Water Gap resident, is still waiting for his golfing partners to show up for their match.

It seems Stan Siptroth, Dick Melick and Kenny Hamilton, Cappy's buddies forgot to inform him that the trek was called off.

Sunday was the day of the setto and on Tuesday Lester was still awaiting the postponement call.

The Allen-Scott Report

Intelligence By Radio

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The U. S. is continuing to obtain highly valuable military information from deep inside Russia — and Premier Khrushchev can't do a thing about it.

Superpowerful radio monitoring stations, at strategic points outside of the Soviet, are producing a steady stream of salient intelligence, particularly regarding air force operations, missile bases, and anti-aircraft defenses.

Pentagon authorities rate these monitoring reports almost as important as the now-suspended photographic "overflights" of U-2 reconnaissance planes.

Range of this remarkable radio equipment is "many hundreds of miles."

The exact distance is secret. But graphically indicative of the extraordinary sensitivity of these monitoring devices is the fact that they fully recorded what happened to Pilot Francis Powers — the engine trouble that forced him to descend, when more than 1,900 miles inside Russia, and the excited chatter of the anti-aircraft gunners and MIG interceptors who attacked him.

The following striking instances of vital military information being obtained through this exceptionally effective radio monitoring network have been cited to the congressional inquirers:

(1) A new and extensive dispersal of major units of the Soviet strategic air command to bases far in the interior. This crucial intelligence resulted from radio conversations between bomber squadrons and ground command posts.

(2) Missile and rocket operational procedures and other valuable data.

(3) The capabilities and limitations of combat and other planes, particularly new ones.

(4) Much information about anti-aircraft defenses, especially armament and the size and efficiency of the crews.

The Senate and House U-2 plane investigators have been told this highly potent radio monitoring is of utmost moment to the U. S. Strategic Air Command. This direct-from-Russia military intelligence is not only essential for SAC's deterrent striking power, but is used daily in training bomber crews.

From Rep. Leonard Wolf (D., Ia.), member of the House Space Committee, the probe has heard that last December a U-2 plane, returning from a reconnaissance over Red China, crash-landed in Japan.

Wolf was there at the time and asked to see the plane, on the ground it was functioning under the National Space Agency, over which his committee has jurisdiction. But the Air Force would neither let him examine the plane nor tell him anything about it.

Returning to Washington, Wolf had no better luck at the Space Agency or the Pentagon.

Wanted VIP — White House press secretary James Hagerty is becoming a focal point in the U-2 plane investigation of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), chairman, and other members, want very much to "invite" the influential White House assistant to explain his role in two key matters:

(1) The issuing of the initial "cover" statement that claimed pilot Francis Powers was engaged in "research" for the National Space Agency.

(2) Ordering of the air alert just before the convening of the abortive summit conference.

A detailed report compiled by the Foreign Relations Committee staff directly involves Hagerty in these two controversial events.

According to this staff study, Hagerty made the decision to publish the subsequently admitted false "cover" statement without consulting President Eisenhower. Also, Hagerty "advised" Defense Secretary Gates to order the air alert. The staff report admits having no information on whether this was done with the President's knowledge.

The Senate committee's desire to question Hagerty has been made known to Secretary Herter.

The State Department chief was notified of that even before the investigation started. Fulbright told Herter, an Ambassador Charles Bohlen, his special adviser on Russia, that the committee felt Hagerty "has a lot of explaining to do of his part in this whole affair."

Herter stated he would convey that to the White House, but carefully gave no indication what he thought would be done about it.

Hagerty has never appeared before a congressional committee. At times, Democrats have assailed him in the Senate and House. But no determined effort has ever been made to get him to submit to an investigational grilling.

From The Realm Of Stamps

United States issues for June

June 2—four cent American Women at Washington, D. C.

June 10—ten cent air mail stamp at Miami, Florida.

June 25—one and one-quarter cent stamped envelope at Birmingham, Ala. June 17

—one and one-quarter regular and coil stamps at Santa Fe, N. Mex. June 18—new five cent air mail postcard at Minneapolis, Minn.

The four cent Pony Express stamp to be issued July 19 at Sacramento, Calif., will picture a mail rider applying his quirt to his already fast moving mount. His mail pouches are slung fore and aft of his knees, and the grip of his heavy pistol "Indian Insurance" is visible at his belt.

In the background, against a plain map of the western portion of the United States, is featured the route between St. Joseph, Mo., the eastern terminal, and Sacramento, Calif., the western terminal of the route.

The stamp will be printed in sepia and have first day sale at Sacramento. The designer of the stamp is Harold Von-

Schmidt, a noted illustrator, and was a co-founder of famous artists schools. He is a faculty member of the Westport Artists Group. He is a life trustee of the Artists Guild of New York and is a past president of the Society of Illustrators and Westport Artists.

His forte is western and marine scenes, and his paintings hang at West Point, the Air Force Academy, the Montana Historical Assn. and the State Capitol in Sacramento.

The four cent Stamped envelope will feature the same Pony Express design and will also be printed in sepia. The envelope will have first day sale at St. Joseph, Mo. April 3 is the actual centennial of the beginning of the Pony Express but the celebrations of the event was deemed more convenient and profitable during the summer months, thus the release July 19 in conjunction with these events.

The Monroe Stamp Club will meet tonight at 36 Club Court, Stroudsburg and this will be the first of the summer meeting schedule. The club will meet only on the first Wednesday of each month during June, July and August. This meeting will feature the June auction.

Flood Of Attack

On the Soviet South Asian Service, in English, Viktorov, a Soviet commentator, on May 14, said:

"In their own country, the U.S. ruling circles have every right to allow gangsterism, that is, a national-tractive ornament of the American way of life. But to make gangsterism a standard of international relations is an insult to the peoples' conscience and a defiance of the most elementary principles of human morality."

"No one has freed the United States from the obligation to submit to the existing standards of international law and no one will free it of this obligation just as no society will consent to legalizing banditry no matter how much the criminal may claim that banditry is necessary for him."

It is a psychological curiosity that no one sees himself as others see him. Soviet Russia has regularly engaged in espionage, as Henry Cabot Lodge pointed out in inadequate detail before the United Nations. It is, of course, axiomatic that two wrongs do not make a right; nevertheless how does a country manage without espionage?

It is possible to ignore Khrushchev and wait until a bomb or a missile knocks us out.

Unquestionably the Russians were and are still startled that an American plane could pierce the Soviet Empire for perhaps 1,800 miles before it was found.

As Gromyko asked: What would we say if a Russian plane reached Chicago, Detroit or San Francisco? We would say that our defenses are not in order. Congressional committees would vie with each other to find out who is responsible for the failure and it undoubtedly would become a campaign issue.

There can be little doubt that if this plane pierced the Russian sky for 1,800 miles or any number of miles and its pilot had not defected to Soviet Russia, their defenses are not in order.

The external excitement could have been organized to impress the Russian people with the wickedness of the Americans that they should not look too closely at the inefficiency of the Russian defense. This is, of course, a speculative view but so is about everything else brought into this particular discussion, but back it up by concrete deeds. . . .

In this same broadcast — always official — it is proposed: "The summit conference will be successful only if it is able to continue the sharp about-face in international relations which began to be evident after the meetings of Nikita Khrushchev with Prime Minister Macmillan, President Eisenhower, and President de Gaulle."

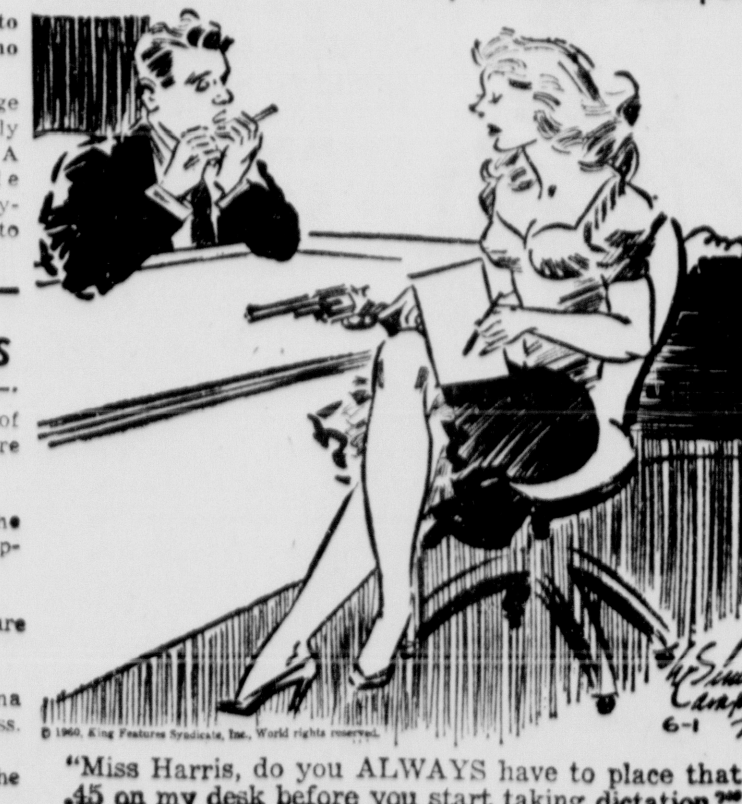

"But for that to take place the U. S. political leaders must resolutely renounce those brink-of-war methods that have been so markedly evident especially in recent weeks."

If I had had the use of those big 'basket gloves' they use today I don't think I'd have made an error in an entire season. And those slick 28-ounce bats they swing now! Zowie! They enable batters to get lots of extra hits. They also break like matchsticks. Hang the expense! In my day clubs couldn't afford to have all those pounds and had to swing a 42-bats broken. Art Lecture Draws Fans Who Show Lots Of Interest

SATURDAY night's lecture at the Pocono Art Center was well attended by local people and weekenders, who found the topic, "The Difference between the Form of Nature and the Form of Art" of considerable interest.

Wayne V. Andersen, the lecturer, used slides to illustrate his theme, that the form of nature follows biological laws, while the form of art depends upon visual interpretation, and presents a reality by and for the artistic consciousness.

In the discussion period following the lecture, a question concerning modern art brought out his opinion that we are in a period of experimentation and new artistic beginnings paralleling the early stages of great art epoch of the past.

Starting Series Andersen is starting a series of classes for adults in painting and drawing at the Center, on Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30. Interested persons may phone HA 1-2049. By late June, the Center expects to begin its complete schedule of summer classes.

School children will bring home the announcement of the children's classes before school closes.

Try one yourself. It can be any length—but the shorter, the better. It can say anything.

And it can win you enough Chevron Supreme to drive you to Distraction, Arizona! (About 3,000 miles from the East.)

Fireplace For Backyard

PICNICS in your own backyard are now becoming more fun than one might have by driving hours away.

Since everyone agrees there's something different about eating out, why knock yourself out fighting traffic when the weenies smell so good in your own backyard.

This fireplace helps manufacture merry picnics. It's easy to build and fun to use. Before buying the materials the pattern specifies, inquire whether local authorities permit building an outdoor fireplace.

Be sure to follow the pattern and position the fireplace so smoke and sparks don't annoy neighbors. Also place fireplace away from trees and shrubs that might be damaged by heat.

After selecting a suitable site, place fireplace so opening faces prevailing winds. This keeps smoke from blowing in the cooks face.

The pattern offered below explains how to layout foundation and provides illustration showing each course of brick. It also specifies materials needed.

There's no trick to mixing concrete and laying brick. One merely needs practice. Once you've tried it, you'll be amazed to see how adept you become.

Bricklaying is beneficial in two ways. It not only provides an economical way of building a fireplace but also offers a sure cure for nervous tension.

Taut nerves begin to relax as your mind and body adjust itself to the steady rhythm of bending over, lifting, applying mortar and placing brick.

The concentration and physical effort required makes a healthy combination that has great therapeutic value. So for fun at home and for picnics in your own backyard build this outdoor fireplace now.

Send 50¢ in coin, check or money order for Fireplace Pattern No. 73 to The Daily Record, P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York.

Home Modernization Aided By Assembly-Line Methods

HOME modernization has itself been modernized by assembly-line techniques. Many building units once assembled on the job now can be bought, pre-built and ready to install, from building material dealers.

The homeowner launching a modernization project can save labor costs by choosing from a wide variety of stock window units and panel doors of ponderosa pine, which have been precision-built and completely assembled at the factory. A carpenter—or the homeowner himself, if he's skillful with tools—can quickly install the complete wood window or door units, which include the frame.

Complete units are ideal for new construction as well as remodeling because the choice of styles in both doors and windows is wide. Door designs, prehung in their frames, vary from 6- or 8-panel Colonial, copied exactly from authentic Early American architecture, to 3-panel "ranch" contemporary. Others have removable panels so the homeowner can design his own door by choosing the louver or panel combination that suits his taste and the architectural style of his house inside and out.

Window units of ponderosa pine include double-hung, casement, awning and hopper models in many styles that vary according to the manufacturer. All hardware is provided. Most have removable storm sash and screens. Insulating glass is available.

Stationary wood window units range from large, single-pane "picture" windows to multipane bay and bow windows. Some include the complete portion of wall in which the unit is installed.

Lighting Flaw May Show Up In Decor

By Vivian Brown

AP Newsfeatures Writer

IF there is a flaw in the home decor that has been precisely planned down to the last painting, it is likely to be in the lighting, says Marvin Gelman, half of a team that specializes in giving lighting advice.

"Homemakers spend countless hours and thousands of dollars to get the right paint, wood finish, floor coverings and other furnishings. But these fine details will be lost if they are not seen in the proper light," says Gelman.

Colors can become muddy or distorted and patterns and textures of lovely fabrics can be lost if the house is too bright or there is too little flexibility in light levels, he says. Gelman and his partner, Marvin Dworkin, specialize in lighting services for homes, stores and displays and offer this checklist for the amateur decorator who would like to check her lighting quotient:

LIVING ROOM—It should be warmly cozy and livable, efficient in terms of activities such as reading, card games, conversation groups, dining areas. Fluorescent light in the living room is likely to be less flattering to people and objects than incandescent light. Opaque shades on lamps can not be counted on to achieve general luminosity as they merely shed light straight upward or downward.

The recessed ceiling type lights may be used for soft, general illumination. "Linear" lighting, in which bulbs are concealed behind decorative cornices or recessed in the ceiling to light one or more walls are especially good where there are pictures or special wall murals. Supplementary fill light—table, floor lamps or fixtures suspended from the ceiling add warmth and sparkle to focal areas of interest.

DINING ROOM—Diffused light from wall sconces will not do justice to silver, china, glassware. But avoid a central pool of light over the table in a room of darkness. Wall light is necessary to give proper dimensions to the room and join the table light to bring out the true colors and design of flowers and table linens.

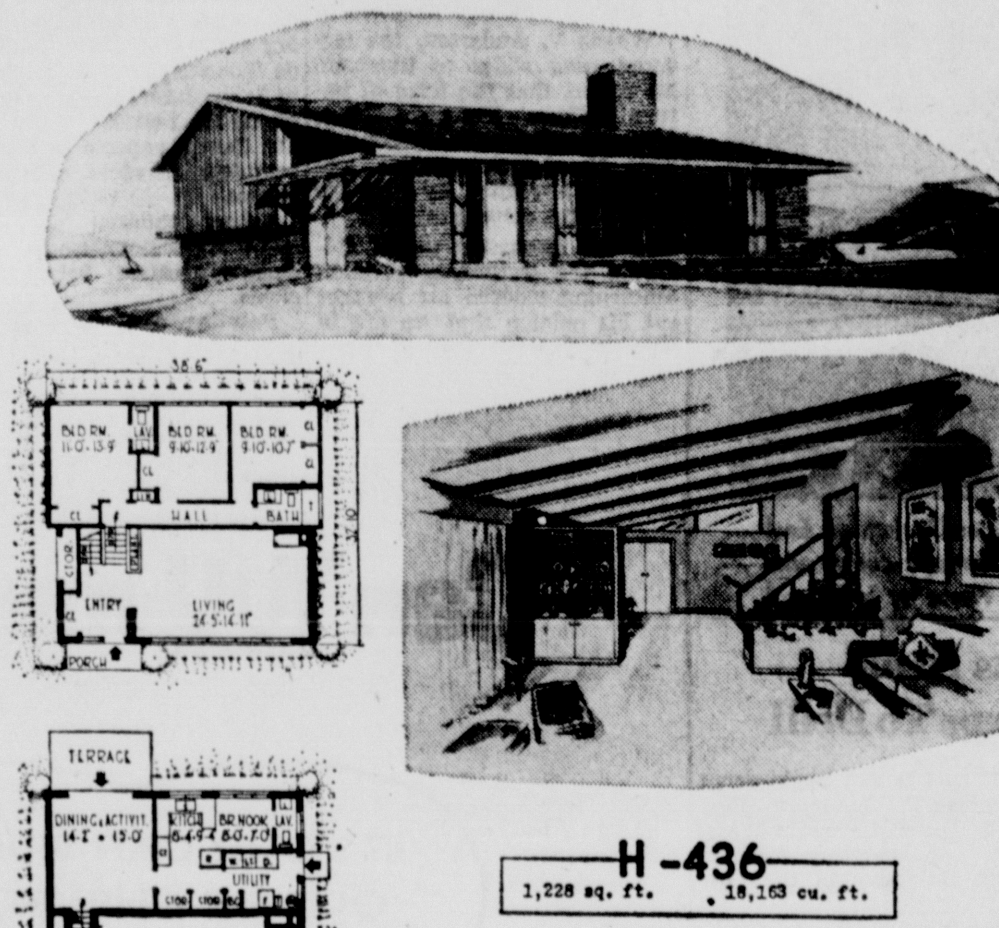

KITCHEN—Is the lighting up to date? Cool white fluorescent tubes behind glass, plexiglas or plastic will accomplish a high level of light which is shadowless, and strictly functional.

BEDROOM—The reading light should be adequate, not small, dim or too far away. Pin spots in the ceiling will focus on reading material with a minimum of disturbing "spilly" light for non-readers sharing the room. There should be a soft subdued lighting effect for quiet relaxation in addition to reading light. This may be accomplished with bedside table lamps.

Bathroom—Perimeter lighting around the bathroom mirror will offer visibility for shaving or makeup. It may be accomplished with bulbs or fluorescent tubes. A double light system is a good makeup guide, warm tones used for evening, and bright daylight bulbs for a makeup gauge to the outdoors.

An overall diffused lighting provided by a luminous ceiling offers advantages for night time lighting if it is on a dimmer control system.

Parade of Homes

Simple, Distinctive In Design Is Hillside Plan

STARKLY simple and distinctive in design, this hillside plan makes an unusually beautiful home with every convenience for pleasant living.

Exterior construction is brick veneer except for the upper level sleeping wing which is frame.

Elevation shows storage room that is accessible from the yard—located beneath open rafters.

The first level located at the rear of the structure is the focal center of family activities. Consisting of a huge dining and activities room with sliding glass doors to the terrace; a large kitchen and breakfast nook; lavatory; utility room with side entrance and storage closets off hallway.

Because the kitchen, well-lit breakfast nook, lavatory and utility area are on this one level, the arrangement minimizes the homemaker's housekeeping chores. The terrace expands this area to include outdoor dining, sunning or just relaxing.

The entire second level which faces the street is devoted to the magnificent living room, featuring broad view window, studio beamed ceiling, and brick fireplace having flush corner location. A planter box and built-in book case sets it off from the rest of the house.

Stairs to both lower and upper levels are near front entry providing excellent traffic circulation.

The third level sleeping area has master bedroom with separate lavatory, and two other bedrooms of substantial size. Bath with vanity unit and linen closet in the hall complete this upper section of the home.

All areas have the fullest measure of privacy and step-saving accessibility.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Included with the plan you receive are Specifications, Material List, and Conversion Detail Sheet, which shows you how to build this home in brick, or frame.

This plan contains 1,228 sq. ft. and 18,163 cu. ft. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area. "Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for design number H-436 may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; two for $18.25; three for $26.25; or four for $33.75. You may also purchase The Daily Record Plan Book showing 70 designs for 75 cents postpaid. Address all questions and orders to Homograft Home Plan Dept. The Daily Record, Warren, Michigan."

Proper Insulation Can Keep House Warm, Cool

ONE OF THE virtues of proper insulation is that it keeps heat out of the house during the summer as well as cutting heat losses during the winter. Aside from the comfort value, this saves money by reducing power used for air conditioning and slicing fuel consumption.

A considerable percentage of the insulating materials sold today is applied by the home owner himself. One of the easiest, least expensive forms of insulation is applied by pouring mineral fibers between the joists of an unfinished attic. It requires no mechanical skill and no special tools, since the insulation comes in convenient bags from which it can be poured directly in place. Generally, an 18-pound bag insulates 25 square feet of attic space to a depth of 3 and 1/2 inches. An average attic of 1,000 square feet can be insulated for $50 to $75 depending on the depth applied.

In spreading the insulation, it is a good idea to use a stick or the handle of a mop. Doing it this way has a tendency to fluff the material, giving it maximum insulating efficiency.

Living Room Can Be Tough To Decorate

AN L-SHAPED living room is likely to throw the amateur decorator into a tizzy. But don't despair if you have one. A few tricks will give you the cozy, livable look you seek, says decorator Kim Hoffmann of New York.

"The original purpose of the L-shaped living-dining room was to add spaciousness, but often the first idea that comes to the mind of the new home owner is to divide the two areas with trellises or dividers, and that defeats the purpose," he points out.

Hoffmann suggests that a "skillful blending be employed to unify the comfortable mood of the living room with practical aspects of the dining room."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

"And heaven try earth, if it be in tune—" was the way we learned it in school but I'm afraid that this day in June heaven would get an earful of jangling noise instead of a symphony, judging by all the complaints about aching joints, creaking joints, depressed spirits which people were blaming on the dampness.

So it might be just as well to put the emphasis on youth in our thinking—and it just so happens I've got some young goings-on to talk about. In a letter from Mary Uhl, she was enthusiastic about that all-night party the parents gave for the ESHS Juniors and seniors after the prom.

The kids were all ladies and gentlemen, she reported proudly, and had a wonderful time, including the 50 who stayed for the 5 a.m. deadline. However, she reported, Ray Jr. never did get any breakfast at the party at the Nelson home, since he fell asleep before the eggs were scrambled.

They woke Doug Metzgar up enough to make the french toast at Musselman's, though. What she didn't report was what time the chaperones went to bed Sunday night and in what humor.

But speaking of youth activities, there should be no lack of them judging by the camp folders which have been coming to my desk. YMCA day camps for girls and stay-at-home camp for the youngsters; Girl Scout day camps at Camp Lloyd Treble and Appenzell, besides all the Daily Vacation Bible School activities.

All of which, I'll admit, would probably be more fun in the sun, but if the rainy season keeps up long enough maybe the kids will grow webbed feet, and be champion snorkel divers.

Homemakers See Weaving, Pottery, Candles

Newfoundland — A tour of several places of interest in the Poconos was enjoyed by members of the Future Homemakers of America of Southern Wayne Joint School. The group then had luncheon at The Lancaster, South Sterling, before returning to classes.

The group visited Holley Ross Pottery Plant at LaAnna, where they were given a demonstration on pottery making by Ernest Smith. At the hand-weaving studios of Adele Mulrooney in Greentown, they saw how handweaving is done on the large looms in the shop. At Eve's Candle Shop in Canadensis, they saw one of the largest collections of candles of various kinds in the United States.

Church History Continued By St. Paul's WSCS

Tannersville — "A Young America Lifts the Chorus" was the program theme when the United Lutheran Church Women of St. Paul's Church met at the church on May 24. A map made by Marjorie Besecker illustrated the study, showing the different paths the Lutherans traveled and started churches from east to west in the United States and Canada, with the first home mission opened in 1800. Twenty ministers were sent out from the first Lutheran seminary, located in Ohio, in 1830. Men from Germany started the Missouri Synod in St. Louis. Many Scandinavian Lutherans settled in Minnesota. In 1834, 18 Lutheran families moved to Illinois and founded a church there. In 1845, Swedish pioneers set up a church in Iowa.

Mrs. Sally Newhart was program leader. Other participating were Mrs. Edward Horn Sr., Mrs. Nita Morris and Mrs. Elsie Besecker. Caryl Nidland led in prayer.

Six layettes, to be sent to foreign missions, have been completed. Mrs. Marie Gravatt, Christian service chairman, announced.

Mrs. Elsie Besecker presented a report on the 32nd ULCW convention held at Buck Hill Falls early this month.

Eight ULCW members from St. Paul's recently attended a United Lutheran Church Women's meeting at Grace Church, Mrs. Cora Sebring stated.

Announcement was made that the one millionth refugee to enter the port of New York was a member of the Lutheran faith.

THINGS I WONDER (after watching an evening of television)—

WHY do so many people object to Television commercials? At least fifty per cent of them are far more original and amusing than the programs they interrupt . . . WOULD Loretta Young be able to act, or even recite her lines, if she couldn't keep lighting, flicking, and taping out an endless chain of cigarettes? What would she do with her hands? . . . DOES it seem to you that Polly Bergen has become excessively "cute" since all her recent success? . . . DON'T you agree that Dorothy Kilgallen was much more attractive with her old hairdo than the droopy one she's been wearing these past few weeks? . . . ARE you as charmed as I by Bert and Ernie? Haven't you found that many of the cartoon characters are more appealing than the dazzling, star-spangled lineups of many of the panels and Spectaculars? . . . DOES it also seem to you that Dr. Joyce Brothers' production staff is capitalizing on her attractive blond hair and pretty features, trying to mold her into a second Grace Kelly by seating her in brocade chairs, etc? The woman has plenty of good, common sense, it seems to me—but somehow she's being shown at 1 a.m. in a rather too good way to seem quite in character with her theme . . . and AREN'T you happy that you don't actually live next door to Dennis the Menace—but wouldn't you love to know Robert Young and his "Father Knows Best" family?

Seriously, TV is very often lampooned out of all proportion to its flaws, and I can't quite understand it. After all, it is a very easy matter to turn the button and black out the screen, or spin the dial to another channel.

Frankly, I feel that one of the most economical and sensible investments I ever made is represented by the table-model Silvertone from Sears that stands in my living room. At times the sound of guns and stamping drives me wild, and I relinquish the living room to the children, close my bedroom door, and delve into a pile of books and newspapers. Yet there is this to be said for the westerns—they usually exalt the good guy, smash the bad guy, and at least keep the younger members of the family at home when they might otherwise be roaming the streets. What is more, I have found that my son and daughter are drifting away more and more from programs of a lighter nature, and watching, for longer periods of time, such things as good music . . . news roundups . . . and documentary films. They have been fully as interested as I in the re-capped versions of United Nations proceedings, and whatever the faults of TV may be, it is both incredible and wonderful to me that history can be made right in my living room, with my family looking on, because of this modern miracle.

I haven't gone down into Sears recently to look over the new TV models . . . but I do know I'm perfectly satisfied with the one I have, and am pleased with the attention given me by our Sears repairmen on those infrequent occasions when my set needs attention. Before my purchase of five years ago, I felt guilty about spending the money. Now, when I multiply by two the cost of theatre tickets my children would have used in all this time, I consider it the biggest economy ever negotiated.

DEDICATED ROCK—Jack Weingart, Tamiment-in-the-Poconos golf professional, reads plaque dedicating giant boulder to men who built the Tamiment course. Twenty-six ton rock was removed from 14th green during the building of the course.

Raised Canyon Floor

Non-Golfer Built Tamiment As Stiff Test Of Golf Skill

By Curt Prins Sports Editor

BEN JOSEPHSON has never played a game of golf or swung a golf club, yet he built a quarter of a million dollar golf course that has been called as challenging as Augusta National.

And Josephson's Tamiment, in the Poconos 7,000-yard course has withstood the par-lousing efforts of both pros and amateurs.

Jack Weingart, Tamiment golf professional, holds the unofficial course record, a 70 but the score was not posted in tournament play.

Several pros have come close to matching par on the par 72 mountain top course. Stan Dudas, a Philadelphia professional, shot a 73 in the Danny Kaye Invitational Tournament last year, to become one of the six pros to come within a stroke of equalling par in tournament play.

Mental Block

"The course is not as hard as everyone thinks," says Weingart. "Most golfers are convinced they can't shoot a good score even before they tee off, because some one has told them how tough the course is."

Weingart is hoping that someone will really give par a beating. "A score well under par will do away with the mental block," explains Weingart, "and will make it easier for most golfers to score better on the course."

Long Holes

Only three of Tamiment's par four holes are under 400 yards and most of the three pars measure close to or over 200 yards.

But the fairways are wide and the greens although elevated, are for the most part out in the open.

Tamiment was a hard course to master, even before it was built.

Josephson, managing director of the Tamiment resort for almost 40 years, had to overcome three major problems in putting the layout together.

The area selected for the course was a forest of hardwood trees; there was no loam, necessary for lush fairways and the ground was covered with rocks. Josephson, a Rumanian who came to the United States in 1909, obtained Robert Trent Jones, the famous golf architect, to design the course and in 1945, working from Jones' wax models of each hole, construction on the front nine was begun.

Added Cost

The original cost of the course was estimated at $10,000 a hole but the estimate fell far short of the finished cost.

"The lack of loam made it necessary to truck in top soil from an island in the Delaware River, in nearby Bushkill.

"We took so much dirt from that island," says Josephson, "that it almost disappeared. For three months we did nothing but haul dirt."

The first nine holes were completed in 1949 and the second nine was begun the same year. "Most of the trouble we encountered was on the last nine holes," recalls Josephson. "When we were building the 14th green, I noticed a small rock near the edge of the area staked off for the green and asked a workman to remove it. He tried to lift it out but it wouldn't budge. He used a pick to scrape some of the dirt away from the rock but kept uncovering more and more of the stone. Finally we used a bulldozer to remove the rock."

Dedicated Rock

The boulder that Josephson thought was a small stone, has been placed next to the 15th tee, with a plaque dedicating the rock to the men who built the course.

The rock is as big as a full-sized automobile and weighs 26 tons.

But it was the 17th-hole that caused the most trouble. The par five hole stretches 560 yards, took two years to build and cost $25,000. It is the longest hole on the course.

The tee was built on one end of a rocky canyon and the green on the other side. The canyon was so deep, that it would have been impossible for a golfer to see the green on his third shot. Dirt was taken from a hill bordering the fairway and dumped into the canyon, until the floor was raised six feet.

But the fill dirt was loaded with stones that had to be removed, before grass could be planted.

"It took three years and 10,000 truck loads to clear out the stones," Josephson says "and we used rock picking machines to speed up the job."

Rivals Augusta

Leo Fraser, president of the Philadelphia section of the Professional Golfers' Assn. of America, has called Tamiment "as tough a course as Augusta National," where the Master's Golf Tournament is played.

However, Tamiment could stand alone on its scenic beauty. From the third green or 14th tee, it is possible to see 20 miles in an almost complete circle. Deer and woodchucks scamper across the fairways on the woods-bordered holes.

Not all the people who play Tamiment appreciate the scenery, however.

"Whenever a golfer is moaning about the poor round he shot," says Weingart, "I remind him that he still had a chance to see some beautiful scenery. I always get the same reply though—'What scenery?'"

Pocono Twp. Wins

Coolbaugh Upset Lakers 7-6 In Monroe League

COOLBAUGH upset Monroe Scholastic Champion Pocono Lake 7-6 Tuesday, to move into third place in the six-team loop.

In the only other game, Pocono Twp. clinched second place with a 9-5 win over Barrett.

Barrett is the only club that has completed its 10-game schedule. Chestnut Hill has two games left, while the other teams each have one game remaining. However, some of the games may not be played, because of the limited number of school days left.

Coolbaugh bunched five runs into the first inning and with-held a last inning rally to hand the Lakers their first loss of the season. The Tobyhanna club, however, clinched the pennant last Thursday.

Pocono Lake out-hit Coolbaugh 7-6.

Phils Whip Braves In Seesaw Battle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies combined two triples, two singles, two walks and a double for six runs in the eighth inning Tuesday night to defeat the Milwaukee Braves 12-7.

The Phillies jumped on Lou Burdette, pitching in relief of Juan Pizarro, after the lead had gone back and forth through the sixth inning.

Cal Neeman started the big inning off with a triple. With one down, Harry Anderson batted for southpaw Chris Short and walked.

Tony Taylor followed with a double, scoring Bobby Malkmus, who ran for Neeman.

Dark Passed

Alvin Dark was given an intentional walk, filling the bases. Bobby del Greco singled, scoring Clay Dalrymple, who ran for Anderson, and Taylor. When Ken Walters singled and Pancho Herrera tripled, Burdette was removed.

Stumpy fielding in the sixth inning enabled Milwaukee to tie the score, pushing three runs across on three singles and two errors. Milwaukee 002 003 001—7 11 0 Philadelphia 102 030 06X—12 14 0

Why Don't You Tell Her?

Dear Abby: My mother-in-law has a nice home, a nice husband and they are very well - to - do. I get along fine with her, but she gets on my nerves because of one fault. If I wear a dress she has never seen before, it's "What? Another new dress?" She makes us feel as though we are very extravagant, although we live within our budget, don't owe anybody a dime, and have never asked them for anything. When we invite them for dinner and serve an expensive cut of meat, she says, "My, your grocery bill must be tremendous!"

My husband says to laugh it off. But I'm laughing with tears in my eyes.

TRYING HARD

Dear Trying: Don't let her needle you. Beat her to the punch and tell her exactly what is new (if anything is) and if nothing is new, tell her that you haven't bought anything since she last took inventory. When serving, tell her how much everything costs. Announce (with the dessert) that you don't owe a dime and find living within your income a real challenge—but you're doing it!

Dear Abby: I am a 17-year-old girl with a problem that worries me a lot. When I was little I used to play Tarzan and beat my chest with my fists.

I was told that this would stunt my growth there. And it has! Everyone makes fun of me and I am so embarrassed I could die. My doctor says I am just slow. Is there anything I can do to give me a shape in the meantime?

NO SHAPE

Dear No Shape: Shop!

Dear Abby: My 12-year-old boy has recently become a diabetic. He has to eat a large variety of food that has to be measured, etc.

When we are invited to the homes of friends for dinner, is it proper to take along my own food for the boy? Or should I tell the hostess what he needs? Or should I be quiet and make the best of it until we get home?

MOTHER OF A DIABETIC

Dear Mother: Tell your hostess your problem, and ask her if she would object if you brought your own food for the boy and prepared it for him.

Dear Abby: Is it possible for a woman to become a mother at 58 plus? I would ask my physician but I am afraid he would laugh at me. I would appreciate a quick reply. Don't use my real name, please. Just sign me,

WORRIED

Dear Worried: Ask your physician. He would be the last one to laugh.

What's your problem? Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Abby's best-selling book, "Dear Teen-ager", is on sale at all bookstores.

Charges Stassen Against Nixon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The city's Republican chairman said yesterday that Harold Stassen has a "stop and hate" attitude toward Vice President Nixon.

Chairman Wilbur Hamilton, who backed Stassen in his unsuccessful bid to become mayor and helped him gain a seat on the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican National Convention said he hopes Stassen will "come out boldly for some other Republican with out always knocking the vice president."

Stassen in a letter to other delegates to the nominating convention asserted that Nixon could not be elected president. Four years ago he failed in an effort to block Nixon's renomination for vice president and recently has been linked with another stop-Nixon move.

Hamilton said Nixon and several other Republicans could be elected president. He added:

"It is true that the Republican party in most of our states... is at a low ebb, but your appraisal of Vice President Nixon, if he is chosen as the head of our ticket, will not help to correct the situation."

MILTON G. BAKER, Chairman of the Nixon For President Committee of Pennsylvania announced today the appointment of George E. Coutts of Paupack, Pennsylvania, as chairman of the Nixon For President Club of Pike County. Baker stated that the names of other officers of the Pike County Nixon For President Club will be announced shortly by Coutts.

Coutts' duties as Club Chairman will be directed toward organizing an effective force of volunteers in Pike County to work for the nomination of Richard Nixon as Republican candidate for President, and to supplement the efforts of the Pike County Republican Committee in producing an overwhelming majority for Mr. Nixon in the general election. Membership in the Nixon Club is open to all Nixon supporters and it will seek the support of Republicans, discerning Democrats, and Independents in the drive to victory.

Coutts has been active in civic affairs in Pike County. Among other things, he has been assessor of his township, and was appointed to the Board of County Commissioners in January 1959. LATEST FIGURES SHOW 92,900 UNEMPLOYED IN SHORTWAY BELT

16 of State's 22 Depressed Areas Are Located Within Sphere of Influence of This Much-Needed Highway

16 of Pennsylvania's 22 depressed areas are located within the sphere of influence of the Keystone Shortway route and reveal a total number of 92,900 unemployed as of March 15, 1960, as follows:

DEPRESSED AREAS	UNEMPLOYMENT March 15, 1960	PER CENT OF Unemployment
Altoona	4,700	6
Berwick-Bloomsburg	2,400	9
Butler	3,100	6
Clearfield-DuBois	4,700	9
Indiana	2,000	6
Kittanning-Ford City	3,000	9
Meadville	2,700	6
New Castle	3,600	6
Oil City-Franklin	2,500	6
Pottsville	14,600	12
St. Marys-Emporium	1,700	6
Scranton	13,200	12
Sharon-Farrell	3,200	6
Sunbury-Shamokin-Mt. Carmel	8,100	9
Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton	19,800	12
Williamsport	3,600	6
TOTAL UNEMPLOYED	92,900	46 1/2 % of State's Total

The above figure of 92,900 represents 46 1/2 per cent of all the unemployed in the State's 22 depressed areas, almost one-half. Subtracting Pittsburgh's 75,700 from the other 6 depressed areas leaves but 30,700 persons without employment in the 5 remaining areas in the State.

Keystone Shortway Association officials point out that hastening the completion of the Shortway will open up a vast area for industrial and economic growth. The above figures tell most dramatically our plight and need for adequate cross-state-transportation. They are taken from the latest report of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security.

The Festival commemorates the time when the children of Israel received the Law and the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai.

The Festival was also called the "Feast of the Harvest" to indicate that it was the season of the wheat harvest in ancient Palestine when thanksgiving offerings to God were brought to the Temple in Jerusalem.

Rabbi Joshua Soddin will conduct the services with the assistance of members of the congregation.

Ground Covers Help Replace Lost Grass

EVEN ON the best kept properties, there are places where it is difficult or even impossible to grow grass. Some spots that will grow grass are difficult to cut. Under trees, on slopes, and around shrubs, ground covers are more practical than grass.

County Agent Arthur Ifft says there are ground covers that will grow in almost any location: some are evergreen, some flowering, and some are creeping vines.

Most popular of the common evergreen ground covers are: Vinca minor, commonly called Periwinkle, or Myrtle — produces light blue flowers in the spring and bright shiny green leaves. It will stand shade but prefers sunlight. Plant 6x6 inches apart, alternately.

Hardy English Ivy — is an attractive evergreen vine with many different varieties. It is adaptable to almost any degree of sunlight and will stand full shade. It spreads readily and will grow in most any soil. However, do not plant it on a southern or western slope where the soil dries and bakes in the sun. Plant 1 foot x 1 foot, alternately.

Pachysandra or Japanese Spurge — will stand partial or almost total shade. It is especially adapted to growing around shrubs but spreads slowly. It does not grow so well in full sunlight. Plant 8 inches x 8 inches apart, alternately.

Rock Cotoneaster — can often be used as a ground cover and is almost evergreen. The attractive berries in the fall and winter make this shrub one of the most desirable for many locations. Be sure to buy low-growing prostrate variety for a ground cover. Plant two inches apart for dense cover.

Euonymus or winter creeper — has glossy green leaves of various sizes according to variety. It suffers from scale but it is easy to control with new insecticides. Plant one foot apart.

Ifft explains there are also many other low-growing shrubs suitable for ground covers. Some of the "flowering types of perennials are excellent in sunny locations as ground covers.

Bugle weed, candytuft, snow-in-summer, and Trailing Veronica are few of the best types. Moist spots can be covered with plants such as Forget-me-Not and Dwarf Phlox.

Vegetables Fare Better For Freezing

SOME VARIETIES of vegetables are much better suited than others for preservation by freezing. Assistant County Agent Robert Stauffer furnishes these suggestions made by extension vegetable specialists of the Pennsylvania State University.

Asparagus, Washington strains; Lima beans, Fordhook 242 bush lima, Peerless, Clark's All-Green, and Greenseeded Henderson; Snapbeans, Tendergreen, Stringless Greenpod, Tekoa, Wade, and Longgreen. Pole type — Kentucky Wonder.

Broccoli, Italian Green Sprouting, Waltham 29; Brussels sprouts, Catskill and Long Island Improved; Carrots, Red Core Chantenay; Cauliflower, Super Snowball and Early Snowball A.

Sweet corn, Goldencross Bantam, Lochief, Seneca Chief, Silvercross Bantam, and Narrows grain Evergreen; Spinach, King of Denmark and Long Standing Bloomsdale; Peas, Thomas Laxton, Freezonia, Teton, Topper, Little Marvel, Alderman, and Glaciar.

Summer squash, Straightneck, White Bush Scallop, and Cocozelle.

These varieties may not be the only ones suitable for freezing, but they are good. The county agent can supply a more complete list of all vegetable varieties suitable for freezing.

Good Tips On Fertilizing Your Lawn

ALTHOUGH many home owners use the same fertilizer for oats, corn, and potatoes, perhaps it would be well to consider others. Not that your lawn won't respond to the old stand-by 5-10-10, but it is a fact that better turf fertilizers are on the market.

Fertilizers can be placed into two classes — organic and inorganic. Farmers use inorganic such as 5-10-10. This fertilizer is readily available to plants. An organic fertilizer is different in that the nitrogen content is slowly available to plants.

This is an advantage for lawns because two applications make food available for most of the growing season. Examples of organic fertilizers are plant tankage, sewerage sludge and cotton seed meal.

Turf grasses, well fertilized in the Spring, will enter the climatic conditions of Summer in a vigorous, healthy condition. This will enable the grass to better withstand the heat, drought and disease which confronts it during the Summer months.

10-6-4 a Natural
Research has given one of the better turf fertilizers — 10-6-4 with an organic carrier. This is a combination of organic and inorganic fertilizers and combines the advantages of both. Quick initial response, plus a carry over for the Summer months are the factors that make this a fine turf fertilizer.

A good time to fertilize is late April or early May and again in early September. A general recommendation is 20 pounds of 10-6-4 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet of lawn area applied Spring and Fall. While 20 pounds of 10-6-4 will do wonders for most lawns, this year's fertilization program should be related to last year's program.

For instance, if you did use a complete fertilizer such as 10-6-4 last Fall and plan to use some again this September, a nitrogen fertilizer may be applied this Spring. If this is the case, try using 40 pounds of one of the organic fertilizers previously mentioned for every 1,000 square feet. However, each individual lawn varies in needs and I'd be happy to discuss your lawn program with you.

Remember to apply fertilizer to turf and water if after application. This gives good insurance against burning.

A complete soil analysis is available at Penn State at a cost of $1.00, may have an answer for you if you have any specific problems that seem to be related to soil conditions.

Bleach Helps Clothes Get Whiter

NOTHING equals thorough washing for getting clothes sparkling clean. However, many homemakers use a bleach to assure a greater degree of whiteness and sanitation.

Bleaches are of two types — those that release active oxygen and those that release active chlorine. It's important to follow manufacturer's directions exactly when using either type of bleach. Care means satisfactory results and safety to fabrics.

Bleaches that release oxygen are safe for all types of fabrics including those with resin finishes. These bleaches release oxygen slowly and the bleaching action is slow and mild.

Chlorine bleaches release active chlorine rapidly. They must be used in proper amounts and for a limited time to reduce possible damage to fibers.

Rotation-grazed pastures may yield three times as much grazing per acre as continuously grazed pastures, says Purdue University.

State Leads Nation In Herd Improvement

PENNSYLVANIA has more dairy herds enrolled in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) than any other state, according to statistics released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The 4,436 herds in this program in Pennsylvania are 581 more than New York State, second highest in the United States. Pennsylvania also ranks second in the number of supervisors with 192.

Pennsylvania is third in the United States in number of cows, with 139,606. California is first in number of cows in the program. Pennsylvania ranks 15th in the percentage of dairy cows on a testing program.

This report includes 27 herds and 875 cows in Carbon and Monroe Counties.

The DHIA program has been adopted by Pennsylvania dairymen as a sound method of evaluating the production of their cows. It was explained that DHIA records not only aid the dairymen in culling low producing animals but serve as a basis for economical feeding and selection of animals for herd replacements.

Strawberries Are Easiest Fruits Grown In Garden

STRAWBERRIES, the most widely grown of all small fruits, are the easiest to grow in the home garden and many good varieties are available, such as Earligrown, Premier, Pocahontas, Ardmore, Catskill, Robinson, and Sparkle this year.

Strawberries may be grown without spraying but larger yields and better fruit results when sprays are applied. At their best, strawberries will produce more pounds of fruit per square foot of garden space than any other small fruit.

Red raspberries probably are the easiest of the bramble fruits to grow in Pennsylvania gardens. They have fewer insect and disease problems than do black varieties, are hardy and adapted to a wide range of soil conditions. All raspberries require a well-drained soil.

Latham is the only regular red recommended for Pennsylvania. Indian Summer is the best fall-fruited variety for Pennsylvania.

Because black varieties are generally more susceptible to virus diseases than red varieties, they are not grown as often in the home garden. Three varieties do very well in Pennsylvania: Logan, Cumberland, and Morrison.

Purple raspberries grow very well in Pennsylvania gardens. These berries are crosses between red and black varieties, produce very vigorous cane growth, and heavy yields of large berries. Two excellent varieties are Sodus and Marion.

Blackberries are extremely thorny but to spread and older varieties sometimes fail to set good crops of fruit. Otherwise they are as easy to grow as red raspberries. Some newer varieties worth trial plantings are Darrow, Hendrick, Bailey, and Ebony King.

Grapes are relatively easy to grow in the garden. When grown on an arbor, grapes become an asset to the home landscape as well as producing much delicious fruit. Two biggest problems are pest control and the need for rather heavy annual pruning. Home gardeners should be willing to spray to get best results.

Suitable varieties include Fredonia, Concord, and Niagara. A gardener wants to try a seedless variety he may choose Interlaken Seedless. How well this variety may be adapted to Pennsylvania growing conditions is not yet known. It tends to be less hardy than American grape varieties, but may do well.

State Poultry Federation Reports On Regulations

FEW PROBLEMS have created more excitement or caused more discussion on the part of Pennsylvania poultrymen than the recent egg marketing regulations, which went into effect on February 20th. Numerous letters have been received, mostly from poultrymen who are opposed to the new regulations, but a few from those who are ardent supporters of the measures.

Various county organizations have discussed this problem at recent meetings. A number have gone on record opposing the regulations.

As was reported in a recent special news release to all Federation members, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture called for another hearing on the egg marketing regulations, this time to take place at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg on Wednesday afternoon, May 18th.

This meeting took place too late to report before, but the Federation had asked its members who are retailing their eggs to keep track of time and labor involved in marketing their egg cartons, and to make this information available at the hearing, along with any other testimony they might provide.

This subject has been discussed thoroughly at meetings of your Board of Directors. Realizing that we represent and serve egg dealers and marketing groups as well as individual egg producers, your Board attempted to study this problem from every angle.

At this Board meeting it was brought out that dating the cartons does not necessarily guarantee the consumer that he will get a high quality product, and many members present felt that coding is a much preferable system for retailers to use.

The next issue of the Bulletin will contain further developments regarding this "knotty" problem.

Announce Landscape Course Open

THE ANNUAL Improving the Home Grounds Short Course of The Pennsylvania State University will be held July 11 to 15, announces County Agent Arthur Ifft.

The '60 program will concentrate upon the principles of landscape design. A tour of nearby properties will be a part of the instruction. Students will visit a newly constructed home and prepare a design of the home grounds. It is expected the class will be divided into five groups for the design problem so each student may have more staff assistance and guidance. Landscape construction details, including dry walls, steps, patios, and terraces, will also be discussed.

Ifft explains the course should prove valuable to those planning their own home grounds, landscape contractors, nurserymen, and others who do commercial landscaping.

Any individual is eligible to attend, although an understanding of the growth habits and characteristics of plant materials is almost a necessity. Those who do not have this information are advised to take the plant materials course next year before enrolling in the landscape design course.

The enrollment fee is $10 for Pennsylvanians and $15 for non-Pennsylvanians. Enrollment will be limited to 75. A complete program can be secured from the Agricultural Extension Office, at Stroudsburg, or by writing the Director of Short Courses, College of Agriculture, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pa.

Crop Reserve Limitations Are Reported

FARMERS who have placed part of their cropland in the Conservation Reserve have an important crop acreage limitation to consider before completing their planting this Spring.

That limitation is the acreage of Soil Bank base crops that may be planted on the farm. In general, the Soil Bank base crops include the grains, row crops, and oilseed crops.

When part of the cropland on a farm is placed under a Conservation Reserve contract there is a permitted Soil Bank base acreage established for the farm. The permitted acreage then becomes the maximum acreage for Soil Bank base crops that may be grown under the contract. On farms where all the cropland has been placed in the program, the permitted acreage of crops for harvest is zero.

In addition to the limitation of acreage devoted to crop production, the contract also provides that the cropland retired into the Conservation Reserve must not be grazed nor a crop harvested from it, nor can noncrop land be brought into crop use.

Plants are still coming in from nurseries by express or freight.

If such plants are badly dried when they arrive, plunge them into pails of lukewarm water or "heel them in" moist earth for a few days until ground conditions are right for planting.

June Is Proclaimed Dairy Month In State

JUNE HAS been set aside as "Dairy Month," and County Agent Arthur Ifft points out that the dairy industry is of vital importance to the economy of Monroe County and to all of Pennsylvania.

It is the largest single farm enterprise and accounts for approximately 25 per cent of the gross farm income.

Pennsylvania is among the leaders in dairying. A total of about 6,625,000 pounds of milk is produced annually with a value of around $30,000,000.

Pennsylvania ranks fifth in the production of milk, third in the amount of milk consumed and first in the manufacture of ice cream.

Ifft says the 37,000 dairy farmers in Pennsylvania are progressive and doing a fine job to produce milk efficiently and economically. They have cleaned their herds of tuberculosis and brucellosis and spend a lot of time and money on preventing any diseases from entering their herds.

Pennsylvania dairymen are interested in records and studying their herds, Ifft continues. There are 200 dairy herd improvement supervisors keeping records on approximately 5,500 herds. These are demonstrations to show the results of good feeding, breeding, and management practices. Artificial breeding has developed rapidly so that more dairymen are able to have results of outstanding sires. During 1959 over 500,000 cows were bred artificially in Pennsylvania.

Dairymen are also developing scientific feeding programs through the use of the Penn State forage testing program, improved pastures, high quality hay, and grass silage. This results in the more economical production of milk and dairy products.

"Milk is one of the great foods for maintaining the health of our people as well as for the economy of the Commonwealth," he stated.

"June is set aside as Dairy Month to dedicate ourselves to a great industry and to a greater consumption of milk and dairy products."

Keep cows away from new pastures for two hours before milking. Weeds in early pastures may result in an objectionable flavor in the milk.

Studies show that a gradual changeover from barn to pasture feeding for cows is advisable. Too fast a change can cause weight loss and a drop in milk.

SOME GUIDES on good tomato plant selection are: 1. A good transplant is about eight weeks old. 2. It should be six to nine inches tall. Should have a sturdy stem — about the diameter of a lead pencil. 3. Foliage color should be medium to dark green. 4. Stems and leaves should be neither soft nor woody. 5. The root system should be well-developed. Warning — don't destroy the root system when transplanting.

Planting — It could well pay you to set out potted or banded young tomato plants. You can transplant them without danger of retarding their growth. Potted or banded plants usually have a dense root system.

Such plants will start to grow earlier and thus produce earlier fruit.

Some tips on actually setting those tomato plants in the garden are: 1. A well-prepared soil is important for good growth. Well-drained. 2. Set the plants deeper in the garden than they were in the flat or pot. 3. Use plant starter or plus twenty-five to thirty pounds of a 5-10-10 or similar fertilizer per one-thousand square feet. 4. If you have spindly plants to set out: Trench them in, leaving only the top six inches above the ground. 5. Spacing of tomato plants will vary. This depends on whether you're going to stake and prune them or whether you're going to let them sprawl on the ground. Plants can be closer together if you stake and prune.

Sweet potatoes may soon join the growing list of instant foods on grocery shelves. Instant sweet potato flakes which can be prepared in 60 seconds are now being tested by the USDA.

Governor Gets School Survey Plan

By FRED B. WALTERS
HARRISBURG (AP)—A plan to force statewide reorganization of school districts into larger units by 1967 was presented to Gov. David L. Lawrence's Committee on Education Tuesday by the Pennsylvania State Education Assn.

"All personal feelings must be cast aside," said Dr. G. Baker Thompson, PSEA spokesman. "We must unite to provide the best education for the boys and girls of this state."

The timetable outlined before the committee's task force on school organization would hand over the controversial program to the 1961 Legislature to enforce.

Under the PSEA plan, which it wants the Legislature to make mandatory, every school district in the state—except those already large enough to support an adequate educational program by themselves—would be combined with one or more neighboring districts effective July 1, 1963.

This combination would be along the lines drawn up by the school superintendent in each county pursuant to a 1947 law. This law put reorganization on a voluntary basis.

The reorganization plans would be reviewed and revised by the State Council of Education and local districts would be afforded an opportunity to air their complaints.

The initial combination could be either by jointure or merger. In a jointure, which school boards may direct, each district involved maintains its identity. In the merger plan, which required voter approval, the participating districts lose their identity.

The second step in the PSEA plan would require all districts choosing jointures to vote on the merger alternative before July 1, 1965.

The final step, with a deadline of July 1, 1967, would, through legislation, dissolve all jointures into mergers automatically.

Thus, the districts would be given the alternative of voluntarily accepting mergers between now and 1967 or having it forced on them by the Legislature that year.

The question of reorganization has, in the past, evoked a variety of antagonisms which would be heavily upon any Legislature trying to make a program mandatory.

Reluctance on the part of school districts to combine with their neighbors has risen in part from provincial hostilities, differences in income levels, differences in local tax rates, differences in race.

PUC Seeks Approval Rate Hike

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission Tuesday was asked to approve a $144,846 annual rate increase by the Scranton Spring Brook Water Service Co. for non-heating natural gas customers.

The proposed increase would take effect Aug. 1 in these areas: Wilkes-Barre, Kingston, Nanticoke, Williamsport, Sunbury, Danville, Bloomsburg, Berwick, Northumberland and Milton and on Aug. 15 in the Scranton-Carbondale area.

The company proposed to change its rate structure from a system of thermal measurement to cubic feet for heating customers, but plans to stay on the thermal measurement for non-heating customers.

The firm proposed raising the minimum charge per month of non-heating customers from $1.15 to $1.50 for up to 20.6 therms in the Scranton-Carbondale area and $1.25 to $1.50 for up to 15 therms in the two other areas.

A therm is a unit of heat measurement.

The rate changes also included a proposal to reduce rates as follows for heating customers: Scranton, $42.30; Wilkes-Barre, $33.03; Lower Susquehanna area, $40.376.

Nike's Mighty Chariot In West Berlin Goes East

Editor's Note—East Germany's Communist chief, Walter Ulbricht, wants impatiently for a peace treaty with the Soviet Union. AP news analyst William L. Ryan discusses problems of the gaudier in another of a series of articles on West Berlin.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP News Analyst

BERLIN (AP)—Atop the massive Brandenburg Gate the heroic figure of Nike, goddess of victory, towers over a drab scene of regimentation.

The four chargers of Nike's mighty chariot face eastward.

The huge Brandenburg Gate, portal for a long and violent flow of history, is just inside the boundary of East Berlin. For those who pass beneath it, it is like going from one world to another.

Beyond the gate, nearly half Berlin is ruled by communism. But the Communists desperately want the whole city. They have reason for desperation.

West Berlin, isolated 10 miles inside Communist-dominated territory, is an open window for the East upon a free way of life. Flourishing West Berlin is the chief avenue of escape for a constant stream of refugees from communism. Their average age is 24. The refugees include many intellectuals, engineers, scientists, doctors and skilled workers. East Germany is bleeding steadily.

West Berlin is a challenge, too.

Ulbricht has been impatient for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to perform on his promise to sign a separate peace treaty with the Red German Democratic Republic. He has wanted it made clear to East Germans that a permanent, irrevocable thing. And he has wanted this as a first step toward applying the pressure on West Berlin which might eventually envelop it.

Khrushchev left Paris like a lion and arrived in Berlin like a lamb. He would not, he said, sign a separate treaty now. The East Germans would have to wait.

Man Who Rules

The man who rules as gaudier for the Kremlin, Walter Ulbricht, gives every indication that he is eager to eliminate this impression of permanence. But Ulbricht's desires have come into conflict with long-range Soviet policy.

There is every reason to believe that Ulbricht, 67, bearded first secretary of the East German Communists, had looked eagerly forward to the summit meeting in Paris as the beginning of a process which would eliminate one major source of his headaches.

The internationally famous Mercedes-Benz Corporation has created an automobile, specifically, for people who wish to operate it at a minimum of cost. The engine is Diesel. A 5122 mile Cross-Country run was completed with this automobile, whereby, the average was 41 miles per gallon—the best was 51 miles per gallon. This Mercedes-Benz 190 D has a 4 cylinder, 55 hp. Diesel power plant that can suffer a gruelling pace and still remain at peak performance. Many Autos, both foreign and domestic have tried to decrease gas consumption. Lower Rate Eliminated

By William A. Doyle
Q. I often buy and sell the same securities within a very short period of time. I always deal through the same brokerage firm—a member of the New York Stock Exchange. Looking over my confirmation slips, I see that I was charged a regular commission on all these transactions.

Isn't there some sort of rule regarding lower commission rates on such "round-turn" transactions?

A. There used to be. But there isn't any more. The New York Stock Exchange reduced commission rate on round-turn trades went into effect in 1953. It provided that the commission on the purchase and sale of the same security within 30 days (the so-called round turn) would be one-half the regular commission.

The 30-day period was changed to 14 calendar days in 1958. The commission rates on round-turn trades were increased at that time.

In 1959, the reduced rates on round-turn trades were done away with.

Now you must pay the regular commission rates, even if you buy some stock and sell it the same day.

Let's face it. The reduced commission rates on round-turn trades was an incentive to speculators. That's evidently what you're doing. Lots of people have been burned trying to make money on in-and-out trading. Unless you're mighty good at it (or mighty lucky) you may generate a lot of commissions for your broker but no profits for yourself.

Q. In January, feeling that stock market prices were very uncertain, I wanted to buy some conservative stock. So I purchased 100 shares of General American Investors common stock at $30.25 a share. According to the "Fitch Individual Stock Bulletin" book, this company is "under the auspices" of both Lazard Freres and Lehman Brothers.

With that kind of management, I felt this would be a safe investment. Look what happened! The market price of this stock has fallen—at times more than $6 a share below what I paid for it. How can this be explained?

A. You should have read the Fitch Individual Stock Bulletin more closely. General American Investors is a closed-end investment company. A major portion of its investments are in stocks of oil and gas.

That seems to be the key to the market performances of the General American Investors stock. Oil stocks have not been popular. Most of them have fallen in market value. As the value of the investments of General American Investors fell, so did the value of General American Investors stock.

When (some observers might say "if") oil stocks perk up in popularity and price, General American Investors figures to do well. Meanwhile, its other investments should also help.

No one can fault you for seeking out an investment with such well-known and respected management. But even the best management can't provide you with risk-free investments when you buy common stock.

Committee Okays Flood Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Public Works Committee Tuesday approved a bill to authorize $1,547,016,352 in new flood control, navigation and beach erosion projects throughout the country. The measure—the omnibus rivers and harbors bill—was passed by the House last year, with projected authorizations totaling $658,310,500.

The Senate committee added scores of additional projects on which the Army Engineers have completed feasibility studies since the House action. The Senate committee also included a number of projects on which favorable reports of the Army Engineers are anticipated before congressional action on the measure is completed.

The Senate bill contains language to permit both the Army Engineers and the Reclamation Bureau of evaluate recreational benefits of reservoir projects and include this information in feasibility computations.
